A gentleman largely engaged in growing of hay and stock in Orange county, N. Y., states the following manner of measuring bay in a mow. He says.

In this part of the country we sell hay by measurement, in a mow, and allow 512 cubic feet for a ton, and it comes out very generally correct. I have just sold a mow of hay and weighed it, and measured the mow, and this rule proved correct. The above rule no doubt approximates as closely as possible to a correct standard, the number of cubic feet required for a ton varying a little on account of the different degrees of presure to which the hay has been subjected, and also with the quality of the hay as regards fineness.

An exchange speaks of measuring corn in the crid as follows. Two cubic feet of good, sound, dry corn in the ear will make a bushel of shelled corn .-To get, then, the quantity of shelled corn in a crib, measure the length breadth and height of the crib, inside of the rails; multiply the length by the breadth, and the product by the height then divide the product by two, and you · have the number of bushels of shelled corn in the crib. To find the number of apples, potatoes, & , in a bin, multiply the length, breadth and thickness together, and the product by S. and point off one figure in the product for decimals.
